Please Join us April 5-8 to Take in the Beauty of the Ozarks in Lovely Fayetteville, Arkansas!

The conference planning committee is hard at work putting the final details together for our Region 6 Biennial Conference. If you’ve not visited Northwest Arkansas before, prepare to discover one of the best kept secrets in the country; a regular on many national lists of “Best Places to Live, Work and Play!”

In honor of the Region, here are the top 6 reasons you should attend!

1. Relevant Educational Sessions! These sessions will highlight best practices you can take back with you to further initiatives in your own organizations. Some topics included are Creating Emergency Action Plans, Falconry-Based Bird Abatement, Sustainability, Social Media, Inclusive Venues Beyond ADA Guidelines and the Business Impacts of Marijuana Legalization. Not to mention, the keynote by Dr. Margaret Rutherford focused on mental health and wellness.

2. The venues in Northwest Arkansas are exceptional! This year’s conference will showcase 7 different venues including the brand-new contemporary art museum “The Momentary”, created in a former cheese processing plant (no joke!) and a tour of the $17.1M renovation project at the Walmart Arkansas Music Pavilion (AMP).

3. Networking Opportunities! Take time to reconnect with colleagues and make new relationships. We are hosting two evening receptions featuring live local music at the Walton Arts Center and Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art. There will also be a dine-around opportunity in Bentonville and a young professional happy hour!

4. Exploring the Ozarks-the backdrop for this year’s conference! The trip wouldn’t be complete without some add-on excursions. Ride a train through the Boston Mountains (Ozark range), take a day trip to historic resort town Eureka Springs including a visit to the tiger refuge, or take the local craft brewery tour and visit three local breweries!

5. It’s cost effective! Did we mention a reasonably priced registration fee of $300 ($275 for multiple attendees from same venue) AND a hotel room block rate of $99/night? Direct flights from many destinations including Houston, Dallas, Denver, Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Charlotte, Minneapolis and Washington DC among others!

6. Pay It Forward! Did you know with every paid registration and sponsorship gift we receive for the Biennial Conference we are able to build our resources and offer more scholarship opportunities? Region 6 has a long record of successful fundraising that has allowed us to offer Venue Management School scholarships every year for 20+ years. Your presence not only provides you with relevant education but supports building the leaders who will one day walk in your shoes.

Thank you to our sponsors! We couldn’t host this conference without you! Shuler Shook, HKS Architects, Tessitura, Eventbooking, Little Rock CVB, nQativ Activity HD, Visit Hot Springs, SICO, Simmons Bank Arena, Ft. Smith CVB and Garrett Metal Detectors.

And our committed in-kind sponsors Walton Arts Center, Walmart Arkansas Music Pavilion, Experience Fayetteville, Faulkner Performing Arts Center, The Momentary, Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, TheatreSquared, University of Arkansas Athletics, Graduate Fayetteville and Eureka Springs CVB.

Click here to register and see full agenda: https://www.iavm.org/regions/region-6-meeting-overview. We look forward to seeing you in Fayetteville! Conference Committee Co-Chairs: Nick Zazal and Meredith Imes

Tulsa’s convention center has been known by various names since opening its doors over five decades ago, and now the venue announces a new name to better communicate its goals and diversity. Cox Business Convention Center (CBCC) debuts today after a year-long rebrand, and with the new name comes a visual look to solidify its role in the city and place Tulsa as a must stop destination for meetings and events.

The comprehensive rebrand includes an updated name (adding ‘convention’ to further emphasize the building’s primary function), a new logo paying tribute to the venue’s architectural history and Tulsa’s Art Deco and Mid-Century architecture, a new website (CoxCenterTulsa.com), new signage inside and out, and a digital and print campaign featuring guests and clients of the venue.

“Both the renovation and the addition of ‘convention’ in the venue’s name are part of our goal of making Tulsa a strong contender when it comes to state and national events and to further contribute to the city’s overall economic impact,” said Assistant General Manager Angie Teel, CMP. “The rebrand campaign slogan is ‘Diverse City, Diverse Crowds, Diverse Spaces’ and this captures not only the essences of the venue, but the ever-growing spirit of Tulsa.”

Adhering to its “Tulsa Does It Better” Arena District tagline, CBCC partnered with local creatives to complete the project. AcrobatAnt created the logo and custom Website, Retrospec Films provided the photography and video, BlueStem Integrated Printing and Boomerang Printing provided print and collateral support, and Prairie Custom Products helped the venue with new apparel and merchandise.

The rebrand follows the venue’s recognition as a top 20 convention center in North America (EXHIBITOR “2020 Centers of Excellence”) and comes on the cusp of completion of the venue’s $55 million renovation. The Vision Tulsa renovation creates a new South Plaza and main entrance on the east side with a three-story glass atrium, valet drop off, and over 4,000 square-foot of pre-function, as well as a multi-use event space (Grand Hall – Oklahoma’s largest banquet space with 41,470 square-foot and 38’ ceilings). When complete in summer 2020, the venue will offer over 275,000 square foot of rentable space along with a variety of renovations and upgrades to existing spaces throughout the venue.

Cox Business Convention Center has hosted a variety of events since opening, including historic performances by The Rolling Stones and James Brown, to Star Trek conventions and Muhammed Ali boxing matches. In 2020, the venue will host a variety of state and national conferences, trade shows, social galas, athletic and e-sport events, and live performances.

Please visit CoxCenterTulsa.com to experience the new look of Tulsa’s convention center. For interviews or images, please contact hbeal@asmtulsa.com.
Tulsa finds that collaboration is stronger than competition
How a city’s leading arts organizations can go further with a shared software platform

It’s common for a city’s institutions to feel as though they are competing for the same attendees. “Competition is stiff for audiences and resources,” wrote Robert Lynch, president and CEO of Americans for the Arts, in an op-ed titled Five Macro Trends that Arts Organizations Need to Watch. Why would organizations collaborate with their competitors?

The city of Tulsa, Okla., with a population of only 400,000, is showing that strong collaboration can serve as an effective antidote to competition. Several of Tulsa’s cultural organizations have come together to form a Tessitura consortium.

What’s a consortium? It’s a group of organizations that share a database while maintaining control over their own data and branding, and it’s a unique capability of Tessitura. The “Tulsatura” consortium brings together a diverse group of organizations, including the Tulsa Botanic Garden, Tulsa Ballet, Tulsa Opera, Tulsa Symphony, Gilcrease Museum, Philbrook Museum, and the Woody Guthrie Center, among others.

In the early days of the consortium, some people felt cautious about sharing patron information with other organizations. But Annie Chang of the Tulsa Symphony says that the feeling has evolved into “pride that so many people are supporting all of us at the same time.” Scott Black of the Tulsa Ballet notes that donors and board members appreciate that the spirit of collaboration can “encourage participation among everyone.” And Cody Palmer of the Philbrook Museum says: “Without the consortium, I don’t know if the individual Tulsa arts organizations would have been able to communicate on the level that we do now. It’s built this big sense of community. And it’s helped us progress as a city towards a common goal.” Read more about the Tulsa consortium on the Tessitura Network website.

College Park Center/Texas Hall Welcome New Operations Manager

Hunter Eagle
Operations Manager

In January, Hunter Eagle joined the UT Arlington Special Event Facilities team as Operations Manager. Hunter, a native of Azle, Texas, comes to UTA from L.A. Fitness where he served as Operations Manager since 2018. Hunter also worked as a Student Manager during his time as a student at Texas Tech University at United Supermarkets Arena from 2013-2017. “We are extremely excited to have Hunter on our team with the addition of this new role.,” says Keith Schobert, Director of Building Operations. “Hunter brings some valuable experience from large scale venues and day to day facility management. Hunter’s positive, can-do attitude and experience will help us take our department to a higher level through serving our staff, clients and partners.”
UT Arlington Basketball Continues Kids Day Tradition at College Park Center

On the morning of January 16, nearly 6,000 elementary and middle school students cheered the UTA Lady Mavs basketball team to victory. College Park Center has been host to the annual “Kids Day” game since 2014, bringing in schools from all over the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Attendance at the game has steadily grown since then, and hit a record high this year. In addition to providing the arena with some of the most enthusiastic fans we see all year, it also gives kindergarten through eighth grade students a firsthand look at a university campus. Participating schools get a chance to tour the campus before or after the game, giving students an in-depth look at a university many of them may go to in the future.

Simmons Bank Arena Offering Luxurious Loge Boxes

Simmons Bank Arena in North Little Rock, AR is offering its patrons a chance to experience a brand new form of luxury in entertainment in their 6 seat loge boxes. A loge box attendant and loge box ambassador are available, as well as, in seat service for food and beverage. Loge box leases may be purchased for one year or three years.

Amarillo Civic Center Complex Welcomes New Event Supervisor

Lance Feider comes to Amarillo Civic Center Complex with a background in Film and Entertainment. He earned a Bachelor’s Degree in Entertainment Business from Los Angeles Film School - graduating top of his class. He also served as a United States Marine during Operation Iraqi Freedom, where he worked as an Ordnance Tech. Feider hopes to grow and become the Event Manager and retire from the City. He lives at home with his Wife (Alyssa) and 2 dogs (Boots and Mittens) and a large Star Wars collection.
Molly Wink Joins Denver Arts & Venues as Deputy Director

Molly Wink has been named Deputy Director of Denver Arts & Venues, the City of Denver Agency with oversight of a number of City-owned entertainment venues and cultural programs.

“Molly’s work on the business side of the arts is going to be a terrific boost to Arts & Venues,” said Ginger White, Arts & Venues’ executive director. “We all look forward to Molly’s leadership as the agency builds on past success and embarks on new projects.”

A graduate of the University of the Pacific, Wink joins Arts & Venues from the Denver Art Museum, where her experience includes membership development and, most recently, duties as chief operating officer. Wink’s previous experience includes marketing and communication roles with the Colorado Symphony Orchestra and the Denver Center for the Performing Arts.

“Arts, culture and entertainment have always been passions of mine, especially because of the lasting, transformational impact the arts have on cities and their residents,” said Wink. “I couldn’t be more excited to join Denver Arts & Venues and look forward to working with Ginger and the entire team.”
